9. Scholarships, awards, grants and extraordinary achievements:

- 1- At the age of 30, I became the youngest marketing manager for one of the five Palestinian pharmaceutical factories.
- 2- In less than four years, my h-index grew to 9 on Google Scholar and 7 on Scopus, reflecting the quality of my published research and citations.
- 3- My first research paper was cited in WHO policies related to COVID-19 and in European Commission policies.
- 4- During my PhD, I received funding for my project through Thematic Excellence, along with two scholarships from the European Union: the Stipendium Hungaricum Scholarship and the Dissertation Scholarship.
- 5- I currently serve as an academic editor for the prominent American journal PLOS ONE, assisting in decision-making for high-quality scientific research publications for two years.
- 6- I was recognized as the 11th most-published researcher in 2022 at the University of Pécs, a European university (Source: exaly.com).

- 7- Three of my studies ranked among the most-cited research in three international journals.
- 8- I graduated with Summa Cum Laude honors for achieving a cumulative impact factor of 114 during my PhD, while the graduation requirement was only 2 impact factors.
- 9- I received two Best Presentation Awards at a local conference in Palestine and an international conference in Hungary.
- 10- From 2021–2023, I was a member of ISPOR, the leading professional society in health economics and outcomes research based in the USA. I was selected to participate in two of its conferences in Washington, D.C., and Vienna, where I presented seven papers published in Value in Health. I also reviewed several health policies issued by the society.
- 11- In 2023, I was a member of the Royal Society for Public Health, a UK-based organization.
